

The System Review step of the Cloud Retailer deployment is a valuable opportunity to review your imported data for correctness, as well as validating your own training. Issues discovered before going live on Cloud Retailer are usually resolved free of charge. Since resolving issues after go-live is often more challenging or may become an unnecessary emergency, the work will likely come at a cost.

By signing this form, I acknowledge that I'm skipping System Review and I verify that the imported data meets my expectations. If the data does not show correctly I will be charged billable time for any corrections that need to be made. After going live with the system, refining the data is exponentially harder and more expensive. I also acknowledge that any potential data issues may not be able to be resolved.

Lastly, while RITE is importing historical information, I am aware that any tax-related reporting for historical periods should be done using the original POS system that collected the data.
